Miss Kellogg's abilities and career, from which we make the following extract:

This young prima donna has fairly outrun expectation. Reared and taught in America, where we are hardly yet free from the soil and the forest, and have been told often enough that the luxuries of art belong to old civilization, it was not claimed by our enthusiasts, when she emerged from Signor Muzio's care, that she was to and by our enthusiasts, when she emerged from Signor Muzio's care, that she was to go shroud and represent America among the artists of Europe. We, the most vainglorious and boastful barbarians on the face of the earth, bad just time out of buffalo hunting and railroad building to wash our hands and hear what the daughter of America had to offer in lyric art, with many doubt and our way indepent in the matter. doubts of our own judgment in the matter. do s things up in style himself, but is ably those of us who had given any attention to the matter knew that there was as disto the matter knew that there was as distinctive a quality in an American soprano as there is in an American atmosphere. We say we heard the voice; saw an intellectual and expressive face, that was called lovely by some of us; noted the refinement of manner and winning grace of demeanor; it. The dinner was most satisfactory. We but we said very little about her art. To be frank, we were rather inclined to be patronizing and to give her good advice. Had it been a reaper or a steam engine, nished us with a particularly fine cup of now, how defiantly we would have chal-lenged the world! That was our enthusilenged the world! That was our enthusiasm for the American soprano in 1861, when she came to us as Gilda, in "Rigoletto." Her rare sympathetic quality of voice and brilliant head register were the same then that they are to-day. But it was necessary to take them to a great vocal market for appraisement. In 1862 she was regularly engaged. In 1867 she went to England, as we all know, and appeared at Her Majesty's as Marguerite, in Gounod's "Faust." There was an intreplidity in this, thoroughly American. Genius of the highest order had made the assumption perilous. Was this Yankee audacity or modest self-reliance, that this daughter of a phonographer, a particularly bright but humble neophite, from a country busied entirely in life's mechanical utilities should step boldly into the sanctuary of art, where had only been admitted, after long ordeal, the few queens of song that were, so to speak the flower of European cultivation? She only been admitted, after long ordeal, the few queens of song that were, so to speak the flower of European cultivation? She made her debut in "Faust," following it with the "Traviata" and Martha, and the verdict, when the astonishment had subsided, was a burst of genuine English admiration—hearty, generous and just. Critical acumen was pleased to say that she possessed a rare combination of vocal accomplishments with an admirable knowledge of acting; our cousins professed to be able to see both a noble inspiration and an honorable aspiration. Her voice was a rich endowment in itself, but to it was added the dramatic power of genius? The subsequent operatic triumphs of Miss Kellogg in Lon-

Local auxiliaries cannot maintain their existence without a reliable financial basis. To this complexion you must come at last."

The committee on Business made a partial report, which was in substance as follows: 1st, That they feel that all efforts to secure the advance of the cause of temperance, are dependent upon the union of the temperance friends and organizations of the State upon a simple and efficient plan, with a financial basis that will give them power to agitate and educate the prople. In the judgment of your committee the plan of the State Temperance Alliance is the best adapted to secure this end, and would recommend that the Convention appoint a committee of five to confer with the Executive committee of the Alliance, and report as soon as possible on a basis of union. Thos. Evans, Rev. M. Dustin, J. Wadsworth, J. K. Rukenbrod and Prof. Merrick were appointed said committee. The committee having retired to prepare their report, Rev. H. B. Chance was called upon and made quite an interesting little peech, in which he called the attention of hose present to the following placard. hanging over the President's chair: "Our motto: The Maine Law for Ohio! and it need be to obtain it, Independent Political Action," to which, he argued, the temperance men were sure to come. The committee on the question of a union with the Alliance offered a partial report, which was referred back to the committee and made the special order for seven o'clock in the evening.

The Convention then adjourned till seven o'clock In the evening.

The Price Current to-day publishes returns from 178 pork packing places in the West, showing the number packed to the close of December, and the estimated packing for the season, resulting in a falling off in the number of 61.676 head in the packing this year. The increase in weight is shown at 39 places, ranging from 4 to 40hs per hog, and a decrease at 36 places, ranging from 2 to 20 hs per hog. Chicago is not included in the footings.

N. Y. Dry Goods Market—Jan. 13.

The general market is less excited. For cotton goods there is an upward movement in raw material, which has been arrested; but nevertheless prices of certain classes of goods are gradually hardening, particularly for printed and plain cotton fabrics, which are in good request. It would seem as if all classes of cotton goods must advance in the next thirty days. Sprague's new styles of light prints have been opened at 14½c, while dark and medium light tyles are still jobbing at 13@13½c.

The Cocheco prints have opened at 14c, which is an indication that they do not sympathize with a rapid advance in price. Of other makes Guthers & Cos. pinks opened at 13½c; Hamilton—13½c; Lowell 11½c; Wamsutta 10c; Pacific percales 13c; do prints 13½c; do pekins and colored alpacas 25; do orientals 21c; do amures 22; Pacific lawns will open at 18c.
